VOLUME XXIII NUMBER 10

LOUISA, LAWRENCE COUNTY

KENTUCKY REPUBLICAN.

The Governorship Turned Over to the Enemy
For the Second Time.

WILLSON ELECTED BY 10,000 MAJORITY.

The election in Kentucky Tuesday was disastrous to the Democrats. Hager is defeated for Governor by about 10,000, but the Democrats claim that they have won in all the races except those of Governor and Lieutenant Governor. It appears that they made of the Democratic liquor men scratched the head of the ticket only. There are 20,000 Democrats in Kentucky engaged or employed in the liquor business. It is estimated that not more than five per cent of these voted the straight Democratic ticket.

The temperance Republicans voted the Republican ticket and some temperance Democrats were caught in the trap sprung on the eve of the election.

The House of Representatives will be close, with the latest indications showing Democratic majority. The Senate is sufficiently Democratic to insure Democratic majority on joint ballot.

The Republicans carried Louisville for State and Municipal tickets. Tyler lost for Mayor by 4,000. Willson carried the city 7,000. Other Republican candidates for State offices ran from 2,000 to 2,500 behind Willson in Louisville.

NEIGHBORING COUNTIES.

Johnson county gave a Republican majority of 115. Martin county 575. Pike county about 600.

Ployd went Democratic by 347 for the State ticket. Knett 644 Democratic. Letcher 505 Republican. W. W. Hopkins, Democratic, is elected to the Legislature by 141 from the district composed of these three counties.

Boyd is Republican by 1030.

Garfield Moore Republican wins for Legislature in Boyd and Lawrence by large majority.

Hutchins, Republican defeated Robertson, Democrat, for Representative from Elliott and Carter.

Whisky as Dictionaries.

The following is not published with a view of assisting Louisa "books" to get their booze. They require no pointers. But the method used by the Ohio folks is original enough to attract attention.

"Send on evening train twenty-two unabridged dictionaries, nineteen small dictionaries and seventeen hair mattresses!"

When the new clerk in a wholesale liquor-house read this order he decided the sender was insane, but the old clerk understood it as well as a druggist understands a doctor's prescription.

In a neat package he placed twenty-two quarts of whisky which represent all the unabridged dictionaries, nineteen pints of whisky which passed for the small dictionaries, and seventeen quart bottles of wine packed in straw, these being the hair mattresses. Then he consigned the shipment to East Liverpool, Ohio, where the local option went into effect recently. Scores of similar shipments are made from Pittsburgh each day.

Prohibition in East Liverpool and its neighbor city of Weirsville, which is also "dry," is not a success, so far as prohibiting the use of intoxicants goes. In addition to having liquor shipped from Pittsburgh as "dictionaries" and other things, about 500 men from the two cities go each night to Pittsburgh or Ironton, Ohio, the other end of the "dry" zone, and drink their fill.

How They Do It in Lexington.

Four men were shot, one killed and two fatally wounded in an encounter in Lexington on Tuesday afternoon over the election. The dead man is Clyde Campbell; the fatally wounded ones are W. R. Campbell, father of Clyde Campbell, and "Donner" Michael Murphy, a policeman. Marion Smith another policeman, was shot through the abdomen and may not recover.

W. R. Campbell was a candidate on the Republican ticket for congressman, and had an interview with Patrolman Murphy, whom he accused of taking too much part in the election. Murphy and Smith arrested Campbell and were taking him to the police station when Clyde Campbell the son drew his revolver and shot Murphy. Every man then drew his revolver and some twenty shots were fired.

Information Wanted.

In the hope that some reader of the News may know something of the absent boy this notice is published in this paper:

Information of Walter Steele, who left his home in Williamson Thursday, Oct. 10. He is a young man about nineteen years of age. Anyone knowing his whereabouts would convey a favor upon an anxious mother by reporting same to Mrs. Mont Steele, Williamson, W. Va.

JUDGE HANNAH

Will Preside Over This Circuit
Court District After Jan. 1st.

HIS MAJORITY WILL BE ALMOST 1,000.

In this district Judge J. H. Hannah, Democrat, is elected Circuit Judge by almost 1,000 majority over Theobald. It is a great victory, as these figures are considerably above the normal majority of the district.

The returns as received show that he carried Elliott county 625, Morgan 715, Lawrence 36. Theobald carried Carter 515.

Judge Hannah is a native of Elliott county, and has represented this district in the State Senate. His first court will be at Louisa in January.

Bad Wreck on N & W.

On the night of October 30 a very destructive wreck occurred on N & W, about a mile west of Huletts. Near midnight about fifteen cars of a freight were derailed at that point, going into Tabors creek, and others were piled up along the track. A broken flange caused the wreck, and the whole line from Naughton to Kenova was blocked, passenger trains 3 and 4 being compelled to reach Kenova via the old Twelve Pole route. A wrecking engine from Williamson cleared away the track after ten or twelve hours hard work. No one was hurt by the wreck, but a negro whether tramp or employee is known to the News, walked off the end of a high trestle, fracturing his skull and breaking a leg.

Crow and Turkey.

The News said last week that it would tell in its next issue which party would eat turkey and which eat crow on Thanksgiving day. Well, a crow of considerable dimensions is waiting to be placed on Democratic tables, but, thank the Lord, between lumps of the nasty stuff there will be served large juicy slices of Hannah turkey, with Dick Stone sauce. The Democrats have had to eat crow so seldom that they know very little about cooking it, and it must be confessed that they are not anxious to obtain much experience along that line.

Some New Attorneys.

Clyde Miller, John Ekers, Bert Shannon and William Fulkerson, prominent citizens of Louisa were in Catlettsburg several days last week, undergoing an examination for admission to the bar. It is said that the "quiz" is now a very exhaustive and rigid one, and as the gentlemen all stood the test it is fair to presume that they are well qualified for the practice of their chosen profession.

Prevention of Diphtheria.

To the Health Officials, Physicians and people of Kentucky:

The unusual prevalence of diphtheria in many sections of the State makes it the duty of this board to again call attention to the best known methods of preventing the occurrence and spread of this disease.

1. Diphtheria is both contagious and infectious, and is distinctly a preventable disease, being easily limited to the first case or cases. When it gets away from the primary cases and makes its escape upon the community somebody is to blame. The sooner we accept this as a sanitary maxim the sooner we shall begin to do our duties as individuals and communities.

2. On account of its frequency and fatality this disease is of far more importance to the people of Kentucky than small-pox, yellow fever or cholera.

3. When a child has a sore throat, and especially if diphtheria is in the neighborhood, it should be immediately separated from the other children until a competent physician has seen it and decided whether or not it is affected with a contagious disease.

KILLED.

Harry Queen of This County,
Crushed to Death at Portsmouth.

Harry Queen, a brother of Willie Queen, of this place, was killed at Portsmouth Thursday morning of this week. He was employed in the lumber yards at the Norfolk and Western Terminal and was caught between moving cars and crushed to death.

The accident happened about fifteen minutes after the young man began work. He was carrying a load of lumber across the railroad tracks of which there are about fifty in the yards, with many work trains shifting cars at all times. He became confused in trying to avoid the trains and ran in between some cars just as they were coming together. He was caught and crushed about the stomach and breast so badly that death resulted within two minutes.

He was only 15 years old and had been at Portsmouth but two weeks, having gone there from Louisa. His parents are dead. The boy's home was on East Fork, this county, and the body will be taken there tomorrow via Ashland for burial.

Willie Queen and John Elswick went to Portsmouth immediately upon receipt of the sad news, to take charge of the body.

A Wonderful Petrification.

Henry Cochran is a well known citizen of this county, and owns and operates a coal mine at the old Gavitt about, about five miles above Louisa. While at work in the mine a few days ago he dug out what was undoubtedly the petrified remains of a human body. It was broken in several parts, probably by a fall of coal or slate, but when placed in position it is very easy to recognize the human form. The body was found about three hundred and seventy five feet from the mouth of the mine, which is on the west side of the Levisa fork of the Big Sandy. On Monday last Mr. Cochran came to Louisa and brought with him the head, neck and part of the shoulders of his remarkable discovery. It was viewed by a great number of people, including several gentlemen from Ashland and other places. If the find is simply a freak of nature it is a very wonderful one. If it is the petrified body of a human being the question arises, how did it get into the formation? It is by no means an easy one to answer. The News understands that the head will be sent to some scientific man or institution for examination.

The Same Thing But Different.

In the write-up of a recent Washington social function, the reporter's story appears to have appeared in the sense of humor of Col. Mergerhafer.

"Mrs. X," wrote the editor, "wore nothing in the way of dress that was remarkable."

The types, however, made it read: "Mrs. X wore nothing in the way of dress. That was remarkable."

TWO WAYS.

There are two ways of starting on life's journey. One is to begin where your parents are ending—magnificent mansions, splendid furniture, and an elegant turnout. The other is to begin a little nearer where father and mother—of blessed memory—began. You see you can go up as easily and gracefully, if events show it would be safe; but it would be trying and awkward to come down. And it costs much now to live. And business fluctuates; and health is uncertain, and temptations from the side of pride are strong, and many a young man who did not mean to be extravagant, has been led along; and rather than face the position and descend manfully, has tried to keep up by embezzlement and been called a "swindler." Our prisons are rapidly being filled by those who make the mistake of beginning life at the top of the ladder.

MARRIED MEN.

There is an expression in the face of a good married man who has a her good wife, that a bachelor's face can her. Of possess. It is indescribable. He was a little nearer the angels than the evated rdsomest young fellow living. The examining trial will be held next Monday before County Judge Hazelrigg.

Silver Tea.

Not "store" tea, nor sassafrack, nor sage, nor tea some people give for menaces, big silver tea. Guess we would better spell it with capitals, thus: Silver Tea. Ever see any? No? Well, you want to go to Mrs. H. C. Sullivan's this Friday afternoon, at which time and place the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will entertain with silver tea. There will also be refreshments of other kinds. All are invited, and each visitor is expected to bring a silver coin. A large piece will be just as acceptable as a small one.

Wouldn't Leave the Covey.

Uncle Billy Hughes went to Winter Valley yesterday and allowed his fine bird dog to accompany him, says the Fulton Ledger. On his return, Mr. Hughes observed the dog was holding a covey of birds, but thinking it would soon follow, he returned home paying little attention to the dog. Mr. Hughes noticed his dog was not at home this morning, and returning to the place he was last seen, found the dog still holding the birds. It's up to the Louisa sports to heat this story or kill their dogs.

any other minister in this end e shot the revolver in the air and ne he thought, emptied it. He returned and jokingly pointed it at Miss Vanling when it went off, the ball striking the young woman in the neck just above the hip. She is in a serious condition this morning. The sad story concluded by saying that "Mr. Thomas is prostrated over the accident." Probably he is, but not nearly so much as the victim of his idiotic act is.

Penalties For Nonpayment.

A good many people have an idea that if they failed to pay their tax before November first it would cost them only the added six per cent. The six per cent is only the beginning, and a very small one at that, of the penalty. On the 15th, next Friday a warrant against you for failing to pay will be issued, and this will cost you eighty cents more. Suppose you are still in arrears on December first. Then 12 per cent more will be added. Let us for example take the tax of the man who has nothing but a poll tax to pay, a dollar and a half. He fails to pay before November first, nine cents. On November 15 he is still in delinquency. Warrant eighty cents. He hasn't settled by December 1st. Eighteen cents. Cost $1.07, total $2.37 instead of the original one dollar and a half. Don't cuss the sheriff, blame yourself.

Catlettsburg, Too.

Willson beat Hager by sixteen votes; Ben Cormack, Republican candidate for Chief of Police was elected by 86 majority and lost but not least, six out of eight councilmen elected are Republicans. Just two lone sons of Democracy will represent their party in the coming sessions of the municipal body.

Sunflower Philosophy.

It is not so much of a compliment for a girl to be "popular with the boys" as she is liable to think it is.

Tell a woman to save a sinner and she will fix her prayers on some wicked man. No woman ever tries to save an erring woman.

Bishop L. W. Burton.

This distinguished prelate of the Episcopal church preached in the M. E. Church in this city last Monday evening. From the words "He saved others, himself he can not save", with Self Sacrifice as the subject Bishop Burton preached a sermon of great force and beauty. The very large and intelligent audience present listened with rapt attention to the able discourse. At the close of the sermon Holy Communion was celebrated.

The Rev. Francis Moore, Rector of Calvary Church, Ashland, was present and assisted in the service. Mr. Moore will probably hold occasional service here.

Being of very fine covert, full silk lined, best grade of trimmings all through and made in manner described above. We think it merits flattery.

At $35 this covert certainly outshines the majority of similar priced ones, a darker shade than the $30 one, but good quality and all silk lined, principally hand built & fits without a flaw—you'll say so.

If $20 is what you want to spend for a top coat, spend it for one of these. All wool tan covert, well tailored, same model as the better ones, serge lined, silk sleeve lining; you judge the fit. You can get the same thing in cities for $25.

Lexington, Ky Oct. 30 When the body of Mrs. Margaret Brisby, who was buried in 1856 in the old Lutheran cemetery, was disinterred for removal to the Lexington cemetery today it was found that the features of the dead woman were still recognizable and that the white lace cap on the head of the corpse was perfectly preserved and was as neat and fresh in appearance as it was when placed in the coffin more than fifty years ago. The remarkable preservation is attributed to the protection of the metallic casket, which was hermetically sealed. The iron headpiece was drawn back after the disinterment and a number of the relatives looked at the marble like face of their long dead kinswoman.

REFERENCES

To Local Experiences Made in a Brooklyn Sermon.

In a sermon recently preached in Grace Methodist Church, Brooklyn by its pastor, the Rev. Frederick A. Shannon, he spoke very beautifully of a visit he paid to Smoky Valley. Mr. Shannon preached there on that occasion, and his allusion to it in the presence of the big congregation in the City of Churches makes interesting reading for his friends in and around Louisa. It is as follows: "One of the delightful experiences of my summer vacations is preaching among the hills of eastern Kentucky. But I think I have never enjoyed it quite so much as during the past summer. Some two miles out from my home town is a section called the Smoky Valley, whose citizens for a half century have been noted for their honest, straightforward, God-fearing qualities. The Valley is very dear to me, because one summer in the long ago, our town school building closed at the time my father allowed me to go to school there. Having the town lad's wonderstruck eyes for things and people of the real country, I kicked up my bare footed heels with a shout of joy and ran away to the old log school house in the Valley. The little country church stood then, and still stands, upon one of the hills just a few rods above the spot where I went to school. But then I didn't know it was a church which is only one of the many things I failed to learn during the days of my pilgrimage there.

So, when I went out to preach for these godly folk one evening last July, I discovered that, while many boyhood companions came in from the surrounding farms, there were many who did not come. Some had moved away, some were too wearied by the hard day's labor in the harvest field and some, like the dear old schoolhouse, had fallen into dust. And while the people were gathering in the church, and as the night was gathering down over the earth I stole over to the very spot where the schoolhouse used to stand, chanting James Lane Allen's prose-poem of the log schoolhouse built by the Kentucky pioneers of a hundred years ago: "Poor old schoolhouse, long since become scattered ashes! Poor little backwoods academicians, driven in about sunrise, driven out toward dusk! Poor little tired backs with nothing to lean against! Poor little bare feet that could never reach the floor! Poor little droop-headed figures, so sleepy in the long summer days, so afraid to fall asleep! Long, long since, little children of the past your backs have become straight enough, measured on the same cool bed; sooner or later your feet, wherever wandering have found their resting places in the soft earth; and all your drooping heads have gone to sleep on the same dreamless pillow and there are sleeping."

And when at last I went up to the church to conduct the service, the people overflowed through the windows and door out into the moonlight church yard. How they sang! And one young fellow, the superintendent of the village Sunday school, how he prayed: "Why, my very soul trembled under the breath of the Divine Spirit as the grasses tremble under the breath of the autumn wind! He didn't talk with a Cosmical Phantom, nor a Stream of Tendancy, nor a Universal It, he talked with God, and God is his Father, and Christ is his Saviour, and the Holy Spirit is his daily Comforter! His hands were hardened by labor on the farm, but he had a gentle voice and a spiritual eye, because his soul was as clean as the gold on the heads of the wheat he had harvested that day.

Ah! these unknown Christian workers, these backwoods circuit riders, these country school teachers, these frontier missionaries, are they not awaiting their service in behalf of the nation's spiritual wealth? And the people living a century from now will say of them as Allen says of John Gray the schoolmaster. He too has long since joined the choir invisible of the immortal dead. But there is something left of him though more than a century has passed away something that has wandered far down the course of time to us like the faint summer fragrance of a young tree long since fallen dead in its wintered forest like a dim radiance travelling onward into space from an old turned black and cold like an old melody, surviving on and on in the air without any instrument, without any strings.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney nerves. The kidneys, like the heart, and the stomach, are the weak points in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the kidneys is, in fact, to doctor the nerves, and of course, as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine is dark, or if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggists recommend and sell.

Have been recorded in our dress goods and silk departments for a week, but it remained for yesterday to break the record—we anticipated the throng of buyers to some extent because of some new novelties that we had just received and placed in the department just long enough before for the news to become noised abroad, but really the activity in these departments surprised the old employee of the store. We regret exceedingly that we were unable to secure even a single pattern, but we are publishing this news to let you know that we have an abundance left of the same kind and quality that sold so readily yesterday. Below we give a brief synopsis of the most popular patterns we are showing.

DRESS FABRICS

The panamas and wool taf-fetae in the plain colors, the shadow checks and stripes, and the new novelties are the popular fabrics for the season judging from our own sales record. We have a large and varied showing in all the newest tints and weaves. A new shipment of the wool challies just received heighten the appearance of this stock to a great extent and contain some of the prettiest shades and effects that we are showing. The pumellas deserve special mention of which we have an unexcelled showing both in point of size and in the variety of pretty effects shown. Added to all these are the ever popular serges and broadcloth in black and all colors and in a great variety of new blends.

SILK FABRICKS

Every shade and fancy will be found in this department. Colors of rainbow brilliancy skillfully blended with the quieter shades to make those newest p'aid effects of which our present showing is particularly striking and beautiful. The new plaid per-lan effects form another category of values that will be appreciated by those who take the time to examine their beautiful effect. The new printed warps are another offering of merit many of which we are now showing for the first time. In addition to all these new effects we have the many pretty plain weaves in all the shades including black that represent high quality and great durability for the prices asked.

NEW GLOVES

Right across the aisle from our dress fabrics will be found the largest and best showing of new style gloves that this store has ever offered in its history. Particularly is this true in the 12 and 16 button effects in both the French kid and the new caps effects. Every new and popular shade including the new browns and tans are represented all offered at popular figures that will appeal to the women of economy.

Glove manufacturers may be able to make gloves that would look better and wear longer than those we offer; but it is a self evident fact that they never have done so up to this time and if they had or ever do manufacture better gloves you will find them at this store.

SHAKE WELL

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kagon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity when shown the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

Louisa Coal Company.

This company, reference to which has been made on several occasions in this paper, is actively preparing to mine and ship their splendid coal on a very extensive scale. The mines of which there are two, have long been noted for the excellence of their product, and now that abundant capital will be used in their development the quantity, as well as the quality, of the coal will probably be a revelation to the public. Rail and river will be used as a means of transportation. The C. & O. railway is on the side of the river opposite the mine, but huge conveyors will carry the black wealth across the Levisa, and the locks and dams at Louisa and Kavanaugh will render carriage by water easy and cheap. A practical mine man, Mr. C. V. Bartels, is Superintendent of the works, and in on the ground attending to business.

The company has leased the big store, tenant houses and other buildings of the Torobright people. The store is stocked to meet all the needs of the miner, and his family, and James L. Valey, a competent young business man of this city, is store manager and bookkeeper for the company. The operations of the Louisa Coal Company, made up of residents and foreign capitalists, mean a great deal to this section. The company shows its faith in the venture by its works, and the general public wishes it unbounded success.

Commendable Enterprise.

Knowing the great interest by all in the election, and desiring to afford all an opportunity for getting the latest returns, Shipman and Gentry, the clothiers, last Tuesday rented the Nickelodeon building for the night and made arrangements with the telegraph company to receive returns up to midnight. At 7.30 the building was packed to the doors with a crowd eager for news and curious to see how it would be given out.

Mr. Nash, the store manager, who is a genius when it comes to writing signs making figures, and doing many other things which require skill and taste rapidly transferred to transparent slides the figures as they were received by wire, and these were placed in the picture machine and projected upon the curtain in front of the stage. In this novel and very satisfactory way the public was kept posted as to the result of the battle of the ballots. The News uses the word "satisfactory" only in the sense of understanding. To some of us it was anything but satisfactory.

The "show" didn't cost the public a cent, and was a tribute to the enterprise of the firm which gave it.

Sick.

The numerous friends of the Rev. O. F. Williams, pastor of the M. E. Church South regret to know that he is quite sick. "How to Make a Million"

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING THE KEY TO SUCCESS

Told by a Man Who Began Life at a Shoemaker's Bench, Became Governor of his State and Is Now Head of a Business Empire.

BY ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

(Copyright 1907 by Henry O. Pagani.)
A face enough like Bismarck's to make the resemblance startling, a slender, wiry, boyish figure topped by a white head, a manner self-assured, yet never coarsely aggressive. There, in a nutshell, is the personality of one of the most picturesque, interesting figures in all New England—that of W. L. Douglas, ex-Governor of Massachusetts.

But it is not chiefly as ex-Governor, or indeed as statesman at all, that the world at large knows Mr. Douglas. A quarter-mile of factories, a yearly output of something over three million pairs of shoes, and a face that looks out from the advertising columns of eight thousand newspapers—these are the outward attributes that have made the name of W. L. Douglas so familiar from Maine to California.

The story of the man who could make himself so well known; his secret of achievement, his life history and his hints on business success will not only be of interest, but of profit to every class of reader.

For the description of a hard climb, of a winning fight against circumstances and the "climber's" rules for victory are always worth hearing. The world loves a fighter and takes an interest in his battles.

And W. L. Douglas is a fighter, as even the most casual student of human nature could glean from one glance at the strong, prominent jaw, the level brow, the firm set of the lips.

That cast of features set Bismarck to topping European thrones. The same physiognomy (with a gentler mould of eye and mouth) has caused Douglas to revolutionize business, to bring wealth from poverty and political power from a State peopled by a majority that differs from him in politics.

Bismarck tore down. Douglas has built up. That is where the milder eye and mouth come in.

There is a keyword to Douglas's success, of course. Several of them, in fact. The foremost is "Advertising."

His Life Motto.

"Newspaper advertising" is his life motto in business. "First, be sure you have something worthy to advertise. Something just as good as you say it is. Struggle to keep it as good, and then advertise it constantly. The newspaper is the field in which my advertising has brought me the only perfectly satisfactory returns. And I have tried many lines before settling down exclusively to that theory."

The same "cradle" served for New England and for the man who was one day to be Governor of his oldest State. For it was in ancient Plymouth, scene of the Pilgrims' landing, that Douglas was born, in 1855. His was as pathetic and hopeless a childhood as ever flickens pictured for David Copperfield or other of his luckless boy heroes. That Douglas rose from it to any later position whatever speaks volumes for the stuff he was made of.

In 1859 news came to a Plymouth woman that her husband, the breadwinner of their large family, had been drowned at sea. All the children were young. The mother was almost without means. So two years later she was verbally "bound out" by one of the broad—a precocious boy of seven—the uncle, a shoemaker. The child, then, from then on became one long day of drudgery and hardship. He was sent at once to peeling shoes by hand. This was a task for grown men, but the boy's fingers were kept at the incessant toil of them in his home. No holiday, no rest of any sort, and, worst of all, no wages.

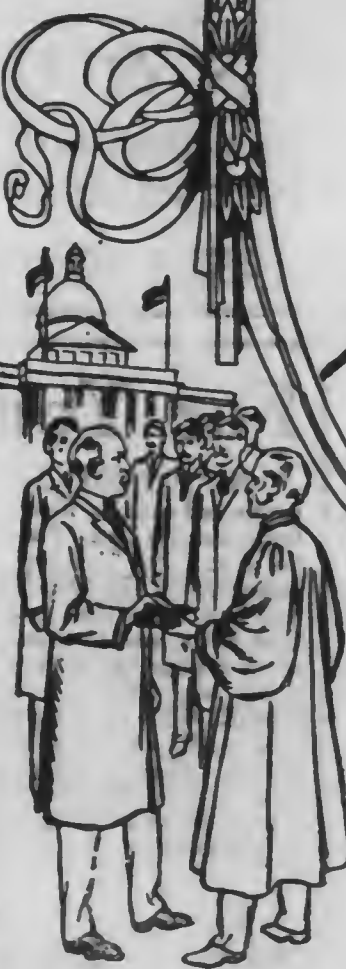

The seven-year-old boy was carrying untidy heavy weapons in his little hands. He has been carrying them ever since. His ability to do so explains why he became Governor William L. Douglas, instead of merely Journeyman Bill Douglas.

His uncle was a stern task-master. Apart from the shoe-pegging, the boy was called upon to perform a score of equally severe duties. Among them was the twice-a-day journey into the woods, in bitterest New England winter weather, to cut and drag in wood for the shop's fires.

Only at rare intervals was he allowed to leave his workbench for the school-room. But at such periods he proved so apt a scholar as to make up for the long lapses. He was greedy for education and seemed to absorb his scanty portion of it without effort. It was only by this strange proclivity that he gleaned any learning at all.

For four years the slavery went on. Then Douglas returned to his mother. But so valuable had he become in the shop that his uncle induced him to come back to him at the munificent wage of $5 a month. Until he was fifteen he continued to work thus, all the time busy with new ideas along his own line. These ideas were one day to bear fruit.

Once, seeking to better himself, he went to work in a Plymouth cotton mill at 25 cents a day. This meant fully $1 a month, and the $1 raise seemed not unlike a dream of wealth. But fate intended him for his original calling, as journeyman and later as foreman, he found the next few years, and in July, 1872, made the plunge that began his real career. He borrowed $5 and started a factory of his own. This "factory" was small enough to be great, and in the most insignificant workshop of his present business. It was only 10 feet (10' x 10' x 10') in size. Yet it was the nucleus of the great business now has an area of 300,000 square feet.

He went back to his mother. While recovering from his injury he attended school and on a mere pennance for a full education. But the lack of poverty had not killed his ambition. He was a young man, and so many men on the street were looking at him with interest and admiration. He was a young man, and so many men on the street were looking at him with interest and admiration.

He went to work at a shoemaker's bench. He was a young man, and so many men on the street were looking at him with interest and admiration. He was a young man, and so many men on the street were looking at him with interest and admiration.

Life of the Golden West. By the way, the boy's father had been a shoemaker, and so many men on the street were looking at him with interest and admiration. He was a young man, and so many men on the street were looking at him with interest and admiration.

Not exactly a brilliant fulfillment of the golden promise of the West, not a direct advancement toward success in the shoe trade. But Douglas went on the principle that success consists less in holding a good hand than in playing a poor hand well.

Working hard and spending little, he at last saved enough to travel to the town of Black Hawk, where, he had heard, lived one Zephaniah Myers, one of the most skilled bootmakers in America. From Myers the young man learned the finishing touches that spelled perfection in his trade, and he soon acquired so wide a reputation in the same business as to outstrip his tutor.

Douglas and another man formed a partnership and started a flourishing boot and shoe store at Golden City. But New England always calls to her sons. Douglas heard the call and came back to Massachusetts. Working as journeyman and later as foreman, he found the next few years, and in July, 1872, made the plunge that began his real career. Key to Financial Success.

"That is why I advertise extensively in newspapers. I advertise not only in the papers of all the principal cities, but also in 4,000 country newspapers."

If the cynical claim that "money is the real argument" carries any truth, Mr. Douglas's theory is demonstrated. The newspaper for the financial advertiser is the most powerful of all.

So, I have no need to repeat the old story of my advertising success. I have no need to repeat the old story of my advertising success. I have no need to repeat the old story of my advertising success.

He went to work at a shoemaker's bench. He was a young man, and so many men on the street were looking at him with interest and admiration. He was a young man, and so many men on the street were looking at him with interest and admiration.

Life of the Golden West. By the way, the boy's father had been a shoemaker, and so many men on the street were looking at him with interest and admiration. He was a young man, and so many men on the street were looking at him with interest and admiration.

Not exactly a brilliant fulfillment of the golden promise of the West, not a direct advancement toward success in the shoe trade. But Douglas went on the principle that success consists less in holding a good hand than in playing a poor hand well.

Working hard and spending little, he at last saved enough to travel to the town of Black Hawk, where, he had heard, lived one Zephaniah Myers, one of the most skilled bootmakers in America. From Myers the young man learned the finishing touches that spelled perfection in his trade, and he soon acquired so wide a reputation in the same business as to outstrip his tutor.

Douglas and another man formed a partnership and started a flourishing boot and shoe store at Golden City. But New England always calls to her sons. Douglas heard the call and advertisement. My principle is: keep pounding away at the reader all the time. Formerly it used to be a custom to advertise shoes at only certain seasons of the year. I never adhered to that idea. I advertise—and I keep on advertising.

"When a season is dull I increase my advertising. That may seem odd. May it? But I don't do it."

That is one of the secrets, I think, of his success. Instead of waiting for a season, he keeps on advertising. He keeps on advertising. He keeps on advertising.

He went to work at a shoemaker's bench. He was a young man, and so many men on the street were looking at him with interest and admiration. He was a young man, and so many men on the street were looking at him with interest and admiration.

actually possess. An article must have merit—real merit—and its proprietor must fight, every minute, to keep the quality high. Success might not lure him into letting up, one atom, on high quality. If he does, in the course of time he will lose. Some people get to making money fast. Then they think they can lower the quality, and incidentally, the cost of production, and make more. I have made more because my goods are worth more.

"It is a strange fact that fully two-thirds of the shoes sold throughout the entire week are sold on Saturday. Whether because that is pay day or merely because it is a favorite shopping day I don't know, but the fact remains, and we regulate our advertising accordingly, making it heaviest toward the latter part of the week. Of course, with a magazine (published only once a month) this would be impracticable.

The Douglas shoe is sold all over the United States and also has a large sale in Canada and Mexico, besides having created more or less of a European demand. I employ 4,000 persons in making and selling my shoes, and I own and operate seventy retail shoe stores in the large cities. The vast area covered by my dealers renders it all the more necessary for me to use local newspapers from one end of the land to the other to advertise my shoes, and made it the more needful for me to study out carefully just what would be the best medium through which I might reach the people at large."

Concerning these 4,000 employees whom Mr. Douglas so casually mentioned, an entire article of more than common interest might be written. They form a sort of Utopian community whereof he is the head. At his expense all of them are provided with medical care in illness, and they are in other ways made to feel his personal interest in them.

The labor question assumes none of its harsher features in the Douglas plant. By special agreement between the proprietor and his workmen, all differences, so far as possible, are mutually adjusted. Those which cannot be thus disposed of will by common consent be submitted to the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation, that body's decision to be binding on both disputants.

In this way strikes and lockouts are unknown among the Douglas workmen, and the pleasant feeling has always existed between employer and employed.

Since the beginning of his first campaign of newspaper advertising, in 1872, Mr. Douglas has gradually but steadily become known in nearly every one to America. The face that looks out from the diamond-shaped frame in his advertisements is familiar to all. Yet the face that accompanies this article gives a far more accurate idea of the William L. Douglas of to-day. The character reader may perceive there the reason why a lowly start in life had no power to check this man's rise.

By judicious newspaper advertising Douglas quickly "outgrew" factory after factory until, in 1902, he erected the huge works now in use at Montclair, just out of Boston.

His Payroll Grew.

Here his payroll grew until it numbered its present 4,000 names. Here, too, grew the factories for turning out shoes in unparalleled numbers—about 3,000,000 a day being the capacity now. The Douglas shoe is sold all over the United States and also has a large sale in Canada and Mexico, besides having created more or less of a European demand.

The five laws of the New England Puritans prohibited the foregoing on Sundays in the early colonial days says the Kansas City Star. No work, no play, no idle strolling on Sunday was allowed by the Puritans. There was no sign of human life and very little motion or activity, except in the necessary care of dumb beasts.

It was a time for the quiet and orderly going to and from church and at noon the visiting of the churchyard to stand by the graves of the dead.

Capt. Kemble returned home to Maine on Sunday in 1850, after a three years' voyage at sea. Because he kissed his wife as they met on the front doorstep he was convicted of "lewd and lascivious behavior" and sentenced to the public stocks for two hours.

Tobacco was given due attention by the Puritan restrictions and it was unlawful to smoke on Sunday except under certain limitations.

No smoking was permitted within a radius of two miles of a meeting house. Most of the homes were clustered around the meeting-house and so this restriction was well-nigh prohibitive. A Connecticut law permitted a man to smoke once on Sunday, provided he went a journey of not less than ten miles. The length of the one smoke, however, was not specified, and it is feared that this law was greatly abused.

And sitting "in the shade of the Old Apple Tree" was not a wise thing for sweethearts to do on Sunday during those early days.

In 1670 John Lewis and Sarah Chapman were tried for "sitting together on the Lord's day under an apple tree" so natural and harmless a thing to do. There is no record of a fine, but the young couple had the humiliation of a trial in court.

At Plymouth a man was whipped severely for shooting a fowl on Sunday. James Watt, in 1653, was publicly reprimanded for writing a short business note on Sunday. Aquila Chase and his wife were fined in Newbury in 1646 for gathering pears in their garden on Sunday. But after a further investigation the fines were remitted.

The records give many accounts of persons being arrested and fined for unnecessary walking and traveling on Sunday. There was a special restriction that no one should "ride violently to and from meeting" Sunday visiting was a misdemeanor and was punishable by severe fines.

These laws were gradually modified in the eighteenth century. But when Mrs. Trollope, the vicious English traveler, visited Philadelphia about 1830 she found the streets closed by chains against Sunday driving.

GARMENT UNLESS BEING BUILT TO ORDER.

The coverts we here refer to, are in three grades, and the shades are light and medium, tan or olive. Priced $20, $25, and $30. The $20 coat we can praise without any fear of overdoing it. Being of very fine covert, full silk lined, best grade of trimmings all through and made in manner described above. We think it merits flattery.

At $25 this covert certainly outshines the majority of similar priced ones, a darker shade than the $20 one, but good quality and all silk lined, principally hand built & fits without a flaw—you'll say so.

If $20 is what you want to spend for a top coat, spend it for one of these. All wool ten covert, well tailored, same model as the better ones, serge lined, silk sleeve lining; you judge the fit. You can get the same thing in cities for $25.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

Announcement was made yesterday of the consummation of a deal by which Messrs. Fride & Day, of this city, who recently acquired the property of the Carter County Mining Company at public sale, disposes of half their interest to S. M. Hille, of Williamstown, Ky. and J. A. Rednower, of this city, says the Lexington Herald. The consideration was $25,000. As Messrs. Fride & Day paid out $30,000 for the entire property it will be seen that they clean up a neat little profit by the deal.

The new purchasers expect to develop the property bought by them. Several large beds of fire clay have recently been opened on the land being the same kind of clay from the brick from which the new Union Station and other leading buildings in the city was made. The real value of these rich and extensive clay deposits was not known until in recent years and it is the purpose of the new owners to develop these earthen deposits extensively. There was 11, 600 acres in the original tract and the purchasers get nearly 6,000 acres.

Elkins, W. Va. Nov. 2. Beverly formerly the seat of this county, Randolph, and one of the oldest cities in the state, enjoys the unique distinction, revealing an almost Utopian condition, of being probably the only municipality in West Virginia where its citizens pay no corporation taxes. The people have not paid corporation taxes for the last five years. For three years money has drawn interest from one of its banks.

It costs, figuratively speaking more to die than it does to live in Beverly, for the city owns its own cemetery, and every time one of its residents dies, it costs his estate from $10 to $15 for an eternal resting place.

As showing the frugality in the administration of affairs the grass cut in the cemetery is turned to good use. Last year according to the city's financial statement, $5.05 was received for grass from the cemetery. So wisely have the affairs of the city been administered that there is a balance today in the Treasury of $1, 114 34. At the head of the city government is K. H. Crawford, a member of the County Court. The Recorder is S. N. Howarth.

Antelope, Texas. We will now try to write a letter to the glorious old News. We left Louisa, Ky. Sept. 15th and got here Sept. 20, and like every one else we promised to write to everyone back there and like most of others have wrote to but very few. Will take the good old News as a medium of writing. There is rather a little colony of us Big Sandians right around here. The Captain and Mrs. Wm. King, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Diamond, Mrs. S. W. Dotson, Henry Nolen Mr. and Miss Mont and May Hickrell. This is a fine country. The land is mostly black sand and is fine for cotton and corn, although there is a short crop of both at present on account of an almost unprecedented drought. To all of our friends we would say if they were out here and work like most of you do back there you would do a great deal better than you do. We have been informed that some persons in Louisa, who beyond measure, have started the report that some of us were dissatisfied, which is untrue. We are all well satisfied and like the country fine. Will now close with best wishes to the Big Sandy News and the Democratic ticket. Respectfully Yours, J. H. Diamond.

NOVEMBER AILMENTS

THEIR PREVENTION AND CURE.

November is the month of falling temperatures. Over all the temperate regions the hot weather has passed and the first rigors of winter have appeared. As the great bulk of civilized nations is located in the Temperate Zone, the effect of changing seasons is a question of the highest importance. When the weather begins to change from warm to cold, when cool nights succeed hot nights, when clear, cold days follow hot, sultry days, the human body must adjust itself to this changed condition or perish.

The perspiration incident to warm weather has been checked. This detains within the system poisonous materials which have heretofore found escape through the perspiration.

Most of the poisonous materials retained in the system by the checked perspiration find their way out of the body, if at all, through the kidneys. This throws upon the kidneys extra labor. They become charged and overloaded with the poisonous excretory materials. This has a tendency to inflame the kidneys, producing functional diseases of the kidneys and sometimes Bright's Disease.

Persons who upon the skin by stimulating the excretory glands and ducts, thus preventing the detention of poisonous materials which should pass out. Peruna invigorates the kidneys and encourages them to fulfill their function in spite of the chills and discouragements of cold weather.

Peruna is a combination of well-tried harmless remedies that have stood the test of time. Many of these remedies have been used by doctors and by the people in Europe and America for a hundred years. Peruna has been used by Dr. Hartman in his private practice for many years with notable results. Its efficacy has been proven by decades of use by thousands of people and has been substantiated over and over by many thousands of homes.
